

ninefourfour

September 10, 2009

An Evening for Autism

Ladies and gentlemen, prep your party dress and bring out your dancing shoes for the 2nd annual "An Evening for Autism" hosted by Orange County real estate entrepreneur Barry Saywitz along with co-hosts Christine Divine from Fox 11 News and award winning Jazz Radio Personality Bubba Jackson. With 100 percent of the nights proceeds going back to various organizations and programs such as Easter Seals Southern California and the Newport Mesa School District's Autism Program no dollar can be misspent at this tropical themed soir e.

"I know there a lot of families that may not have the resources, knowledge or finances to get the help and support they need with autism but [An Evening for Autism] not only provides exposure but helps generate money for these [helpful] programs," Saywitz says. A stellar night of entertainment is lined up with live bands, eight beverage bars, a silent and live auction and a chance to sample delicious dishes and drinks from sponsors such as Tommy Bahama's Island Grille, Maggiano's Little Italy, The Cheesecake Factory, Stone Brewery, and much much more.

With over 500 guests from across the Southland anticipated to attend tickets for the event are definitely expected to sell out. So don't be left behind from this first class event where celebrities, athletes, political dignitaries and community/business leaders are gathering together for a worthy cause. "If you were thinking of going out on a Saturday night, I guarantee you'll have just as much fun here and at the same time will be doing something good," Saywitz says.

For more information and the chance to snag your tickets while they're still available, visit www.aneveningforautism.org.